The INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, W. VA., JULY 20, 1888.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON,
of Indiana.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON, of New York.

WHEELING to Mr. Mills—"Go to the ant, thou sluggard!"

The green apple has drawn it very mild this season. Bless the children.

FREE TRADE builds no potteries, glass houses, iron mills—that is, not in America.

These walls are terrible. If the Register gang had any brains they would be desperate enough to blow them out in the twinkling of an eye.

It is awfully funny to see the attempt to stop the stampede by resorting to the methods of the bull-dog. Won't work, dear boys, won't work.

The indications are that men are going to vote as they think this year. This is what makes the cause of Protection look so charmingly encouraging.

The "G. Cleveland" silk buttons come from England. His Majesty's beef and mutton haven't yet begun to come over the bounding sea. But let's bless you! the man is young yet in the business.

It has been a long time since there has been so much lively hustling among the able Free Traders of Ohio county. First thing you know they'll be cutting off their pig-tails, every last precious one of them.

The distracted Democratic politicians of Wheeling should try their pretence hands at some more Chinese business. That is really their best hold. They can find a Young Democrat to handle the hot chestnuts for them.

Elsewhere appear some highly entertaining comments from our friends the people touching a certain phase of politics as seen right where we live. Some of the comments are very apt. Some are more pungent than the case requires. We ought to be charitable to the desperate.

Is New York a widow with four children pays $11 a month to her employers for three miserable rooms in which she keeps her family and makes tenement house cigars. The employer takes out the rent, which is said to be enormous for the rooms, and what is left the poor woman gets. The leavings have amounted to $2 in six weeks. The smoker who knowingly smokes tenement house cigars carries a stone where his heart should be.

The Register is convinced that Mr. W. L. Hearne is making a mistake to vote for Protection this year, and that the Protectionists are making a mistake to allow him to vote with them. It may be, if the matter had been suggested before it was too late, it may be that all parties interested would have consulted Thom Dallas, Slippery Jim and the rest of the Register coterie of powerful mind-readers. This is perhaps the only real mistake of the campaign thus far.

Democratic party to American Farmer—"We're not for Free Trade. Behold how liberal we are to the sugar of Louisiana and of the Sugar Trust, and lo, have we not left 100 per cent on the rice of our sister South Carolina?"

American Farmer to Democratic Party—"That is certainly very handsome, and it almost, but not quite, reconciles me to the destruction of the American wool-growing industry. I love you—love you a good deal—and I'm going to chasten you by voting against you this time."

No Different, You Know.

So long as Mr. W. L. Hearne voted the Democratic ticket, put up his good money for the Democratic politicians to handle in their own peculiar way, and gave to that side of the house the weight of his character and intelligence, he was all right. He was even allowed to be a manufacturer, to put all the money he pleased into manufacturing, and it never occurred to one Democrat or to one Republican to charge that W. L. Hearne was an idiot or a common robber. Now that Mr. Hearne has exercised one of the rights of citizenship and concluded to look elsewhere for that which he could not find in the Democratic party, he is not looked at by all the small traders, and the gad-fies and gnats are buzzing around in the vain hope of giving him annoyance.

It isn't hard to understand these capers. They represent the utter demoralization of the ward politicians who are holding up the Democratic party by the tail hereabouts. Mr. Hearne has contributed more money to it than any five men in Ohio county. He has added the party with his counsel and would have added it more if his party had had sense enough to take more of his unselfish and always enlightened advice.

He has been a tower of strength to the Democracy of this region, because the leaders could point to him as one largely interested in manufactures, one who would be quick to know and to resent any menace to the manufacturing industries, one who stood with the Democratic party in spite of the wicked allegations of the base Republicans that the Democracy is a Free Trade party.

Not only this, but they never tired of telling, what was the cold truth, that if

W. L. Hearne has made money in Wheeling it must not be forgotten that he brought a fortune here, that he has done at least as much as any other one man to develop the industries of Wheeling, and that as he has made money he has put it back in Wheeling industries—iron, steel and pottery—every one of which adds to the common prosperity of the community.

While Mr. Hearne and his whole family were voting the Democratic ticket no Republican thought it his sweet privilege to jump on them, to ridicule them, to denounce them as men incapable of doing their own thinking. This was left for those men who remain—where they have always been—as close to the Democratic meal trough as they can get.

The Arriving Recruit.

"A Wage-Earner," whose article appears elsewhere, doubts the propriety of the Intelligencer printing the names of those Democrats who have declared their intention to vote for Protection this year.

Our friend may take a different view of the matter when we remind him that in no case has such publication been made without the free consent of the person immediately interested. There being, therefore, no breach of privilege, what general reason can there be for withholding so interesting and important a fact?

Men who are going to vote this year as they have always voted make no secret of it, but rather regard it as highly creditable to them. This being a free country, there is no reason why a man who is going to change his vote this year should padlock his mouth.

The man himself may know some special reason for doing his voting quietly; in which case the Intelligencer will certainly not take the liberty of advertising his intention. Why, we have a large assortment of that kind on ice at this very time.

Perhaps This Will Satisfy.

Wheeling Free Traders have taken up the sad refrain of Cleveland, Carlisle, Watterson, Morrison and the Texan steer who steers the Ways and Means Committee, and, though they do not like to be called Free Traders, speak in the well-known language of their tribe.

They regard it as a crime to be engaged in manufacturing and at the same time to vote the Republican ticket. They think it the sure damnation of the Republican cause—so dear to their dear hearts—that it is drawing out of the Democratic ranks men who have their money invested in manufacturing and who commit the sin of sins when they descend to the mean level of employing men to do for them what they are unable to do for themselves. These employers ought to shovel their own ore, handle their own pig metal, make their own steel and turn out their own tubes—hang 'em that's what they ought to do instead of employing other men to do things for them.

Well, admitting that it is a crime to be a manufacturer and to employ men, and that the cause of Protection is hurt as often as a manufacturer says a good word for it, here is something from the men who are employed, and from men who have not been regarded as particularly craven:

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 13.—The Amalgamated Association placed itself on record to-day on the tariff question. The Tariff Committee appointed several days ago has been carefully weighing the matter before drawing up any resolutions, and at the forenoon session of the Convention they were presented. They were received with general favor and some slight changes were made in them.

The corrected resolutions are as follows: Whereas, There has been introduced, and now under discussion, before Congress a bill known as the Mills bill, for the reduction of the present tariff on customs, and thereby put a check on the prosperity of our beloved country in favor of foreign countries, especially England and

Whereas, We as workmen know that any reduction on the present tariff would menace the wages of those who earn their living by the sweat of their brow; and

Resolved, That there is joy among the ill-paid workmen of Europe, joy among the members of the English Cobden Club because they hope to obtain control of the market of this Republic; therefore, as representatives of the iron and steel workers of the United States in convention assembled, representing New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Alabama and other States in this Union, be it

Resolved, That we are in favor of the sentiment, "America for Americans," native and naturalized, and we endorse the words of Daniel Webster, who, fifty-one years ago, said if the people can obtain fair compensation for their labor they will have good houses, good clothing, good food and the means of educating their children. Labor will be cheerful and the people happy.

Resolved, That in our judgment the citizens and industries of this country cannot be protected in any better way than by placing a protective tariff on all articles imported from other countries that can be produced by our own people, in order that those who produce them may be better able to demand that to which, as citizens and upholders of this Government, they are justly entitled to an equitable share of the profits of their toil to maintain their families in decency; that they may be able to educate their children and teach them, as they advance toward manhood, to defend the principles of our system of government.

Resolved, That we are most emphatically opposed to any reduction of the present tariff, and we hereby express our unqualified condemnation of the provisions of the Mills bill, believing we do that its adoption as a law would be detrimental to the interests of the American workmen, and we respectfully call upon our representatives in Congress to vote against it.

RES. THROSKER, JAMES PENNEY, JOHN MURRAY, D. D. MORGAN, C. C. MARSH, D. H. MAREE, JAS. G. STEPHENS, JAS. GRUNDY, L. MURRAY, Committee.

Do the Register and its kitchen cabinet regard it as criminal, not to say "real mean" of the Amalgamated Association men to favor Protection, when the high muckamucks of the Democracy are assuring them that what they actually need is a good drastic dose of Free Trade? Avant, grim spectre! Get thee gone, thou scorn and scold of the dog-pelting small boy!

WORKERS NOT BENEFITED.

President Campbell, of the Window Glass Workers, on the Mills Bill.

James Campbell, President of the Window Glass Workers' Association, leaves to-day for Belgium to attend the convention of the Universal Federation. He says the allegations of some glass men that the Mills bill benefits manufacturers by reducing the duty on chemicals, enter into the composition of glass, show a very superficial knowledge of that document. "It is true," said he, "that potash, soda and arsenic are admitted free of duty, which would lessen the cost of manufacturing, but at the same time the radical reduction in the manufactured article itself far overbalances the cheapening in cost. At any rate, no one can see where the workmen are benefited by the glass section. It reduces the duty on chemicals, but the duty on the bill was constructed especially for that purpose."

FOREIGN WOOLS

Already Arranged for by a Big Concern. One of Messrs. Horkheimer's Correspondents.

Messrs. Horkheimer Bros., the well known wool dealers of this city, who as published in yesterday's issue of the Intelligencer have decided to vote this year for Harrison and Morton and the Republican Congressional and Legislative nominees, after having always voted the Democratic ticket, yesterday handed in the letter printed below, to be used as a further evidence of the condition of the wool market as brought about by the free trade views and endeavors of the Democratic party. Broadhead & Sons are the proprietors of the Broadhead Worsted mills, large concerns employing hundreds of hands. Their yearly consumption of wool has been over one million pounds and they have used in the past thousands of pounds of fine wools raised hereabouts.

The letter is a self-explanatory one and is of peculiar interest to the wool-growers. It is in this state of affairs, as shown in this letter, brought about by Cleveland and his Free Trade ideas and friends, that have decided the Messrs. Horkheimer to vote with the party of Protection.

The letter is as follows:

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., May 29, 1888.

Messrs. Horkheimer Bros., Wheeling, W. Va.

GENTLEMEN:—We are duly in receipt of your esteemed favor of the 25th inst. In reply to the same, we have been very much undecided in regard to making our usual purchases of wools at this season. Owing to the very unsettled state of the wool market and possible legislation against American wools, we have thought best to buy as little wool as possible, and have only placed orders for what we need for our immediate wants. We usually buy during the city from 500,000 to 750,000 pounds, that being about one-half our yearly consumption, but owing to reasons, as stated above, we have decided to place no large orders at this time. We have made arrangements abroad, so that if the duty should be taken off wools, we should be able to purchase at once a year's supply at the low prices ruling in the London market at this time. We hardly think we should be interested in your offer. Thanking you for favors, we remain,

Yours very respectfully,

W. BROADHEAD & SONS.

Wool Taste in Mutton.

In your Journal of June 23d I find from the "American Public Health Association," the following words:

In dressing a mutton the woolly coat should not be allowed to touch the flesh. There is quite a perceptible difference in the favor of mutton taken from a fat-tailed wether which has been for some time deprived of all excess in his woolly coat, and of that taken from a sheep which has heavy fleece.

It is such ill-considered language and observations as this which bring "science" for looks or taste in common sense, and consequent dispute with the masses.

I have been fed on mutton for a life time, butchered at home, and for a half century have given through the press the true causes of the "wool taste" in mutton, but in vain. Enormous holds its way all the same. One cause of this want of wide knowledge of truth in agricultural journals is the poor practice of not copying the best thought from other journals for fear of advertising. One of the best agricultural journals in these States is now the Southern Planter, of Richmond, Va., whose articles are often eclectic, and therefore giving the best thought of the whole Republic.

Of all methods of improving the soil and destroying weeds, sheep are the best. Of all domestic meats mutton is the most wholesome, being a specific for many diseases. It is the most convenient to the farmer as butchering meat. In the history of mankind it has played the most important part in his necessities, giving wool, hides, milk and butter. If all of the industries of these States were put to the test of survival or destruction, the sheep would remain as the first factor in civilization.

The "wool taste" then comes not of the touch of the wool or the length of the wool on the sheep, but of the infusion of the excretions of the intestines into the circulation, which taints the flesh with the offensive "wool taste." The lining strata of the intestines prevent the offensive entrance of the excreta into the capillary tubes of the absorbing surfaces. But as soon as the vital powers cease this capacity for resistance ceases and the capillary excretions are infused into the venous circulation.

In consequence of these facts, it is best to starve the sheep for twenty-four hours before killing, giving water, however, plentifully. Prevent reproduction of the bowels of the sheep and diminishes the tendency of infusion. The sheep, all things being ready, should have their throat cut all round to the bone, thus bleeding it freely. As soon as the sensibility of the victim is lost, it should be skinned partly on the hind quarters and save time, then jump up and skinning rapidly completed and the whole carcass at once taken out. The flesh is then perfectly sweet, and the "wool taste" is perceptible. As the wool grows from the surface of the skin and is pushed forward as the outer bark of the tree, no circulation returns from the ends of the wool, and how then can its length affect the mutton? But as the wool has been and continues on the sheep before and during its growth, what study is it to cut the wool off a short time before killing? If the sheep is butchered rightly you may safely wrap the carcass in the wool and lay it by till used.

Among all the hunters of my circle in early life we have accustomed to take out the intestines of the squirrels and hares as soon as shot, before cooling. Birds killed and dressed at once are very different from the game of the shops of the cities, where they reach a "high flavor," we do that in the kitchen, the dog from his half-dressed buried meat. Dogsbush is not disputandum est. So the Pontic monarchs fed on poison and lived. Save us from the Doctors, the Demagogues and the dogs!

Second District

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

MARTINSBURG, W. VA., July 16, 1888.

In accordance with the power invested in me as Chairman of the Second Congressional District Committee of West Virginia, a Convention is hereby called to meet at Phillips, Harbour county, West Virginia, on
